You're too linear, she said, as she chewed her sun-streaked braid
I said, you're too anti-logical, you're California-made
I don't know what you mean
When you say I never ever set you free
Honey bee

You're too button down, she said, and she sipped her jasmine tea
I said, you're too henna tie dyed peasant dress below the knee
I don't know what to say
When you think I never ever set you
free
Honey bee, honey bee

I never understood your smile
Fickle, fleeting, overheating
No longer than a while
I never understood your smile
Kinda quirky, sexy, perky
It could lead me down the aisle

You're my useful tool, she said, and she flipped me with her hair I said, you're my vegan tofu girl, and I don't care what you wear
I think I know what I can say
When you think you want to let me set you free
Honey bee, honey bee

I never understood your smile
Fickle, fleeting, overheating
No longer than a while
I never understood your smile
Kinda quirky, sexy, perky
It could lead me down the aisle

Don't ever go, I don't know Why you think I'd ever want to set you free

I never understood your smile
Fickle, fleeting, overheating
No longer than a while
I never understood your smile
Kinda quirky, sexy, perky
It could lead me down the aisle
I never understood your smile
